

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

December 2, 2016

Contact: Eryl P. Wentworth
Email: ewentworth@conservation-us.org
Phone: (202) 661-8060

AIC Statement on the Dakota Access Pipeline (DAPL)

WASHINGTON, D.C.--- The American Institute for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works strongly supports the Oceti Sakowin Oyate (the Great Sioux Nation) and the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe in their opposition to the construction of the Dakota Access Pipeline (DAPL) across treaty land. As the national professional organization dedicated to the preservation of cultural heritage, we deplore the destruction or desecration of any historic or sacred site, and are deeply concerned by the current threat posed to such cultural heritage by the DAPL. We are committed to collaborating with native people and support the preservation and long-term stewardship of their culturally significant sites. For these reasons, we join with allied agencies, including the American Alliance of Museums, the American Anthropological Association, and the Society for American Archaeology, to condemn any negative impact of the DAPL on historic and sacred sites.

###

About AIC

The American Institute for Conservation of Historic and Artistic Works (AIC) exists to support the conservation professionals who preserve our cultural heritage. AIC plays a crucial role in establishing and upholding professional standards, promoting research and publications, providing educational opportunities, and fostering the exchange of knowledge among conservators, allied professionals, and the public. Since its founding in 1972, AIC has grown to more than 3,500 conservators, educators, scientists, students, archivists, art historians, and institutional members in more than forty countries around the world, all of whom have the same goal: to preserve the material evidence of our past so we can learn from it today and appreciate it in the future. Learn more about AIC at www.conservation-us.org.

The American Institute for Conservation of Historic & Artistic Works
1156 15th Street, NW • Suite 320 • Washington, DC 20005
202-452-9545 • info@conservation-us.org • www.conservation-us.org