Institutional Membership is intended for organizations. Institutional members must select a primary contact to distribute benefits. The institution will receive: one print subscription to the Journal of the American Institute for Conservation (JAIC); access to the entire JAIC catalogue via one email address; a subscription to the bimonthly member e-newsletter AIC News; a discount on annual meeting registration for one employee; access to member-restricted sections of our website for the primary contact only; and member and advocacy notifications sent via email. Institutional members who also add a specialty group will receive any planned group postprints (sent annually or biannually, where applicable).

This membership is not intended to replace an individual membership. Individual members gain access to workshop discounts and grant/scholarship applications; member-only distribution email lists; access to the member forum and online directory; can vote in elections; may apply for professional membership to enhance their careers; and run for leadership positions.
