

Heritage Emergency Response Alliance (HERA) presents

FIRE AT THE MUSEUM: WORKING WITH FIRST RESPONDERS

A tabletop/panel discussion

Date and Time: Monday, March 10, 2008 ♦ 11:00 am -1:00 pm

Location: NARA Southeast Regional Archives, 5780 Jonesboro Road, Morrow,
Georgia 30260, Phone: 770-968-2100

Join us for lunch and participate in a tabletop exercise. The scenario is a fire at the Michael C. Carlos Museum. This exercise will focus on the role of first responders during the initial response phase of a disaster, and the specific challenges to emergency response at a cultural center. Let's help prevent this from ever actually happening by learning how to protect your collections from disaster.

Facilitator: Steven Martin, Fulton County Police

Panelists:

Bernard Potts, Head of Security Michael C. Carlos Museum

Renee Stein, Conservator, Michael C. Carlos Museum

A representative from Emory Police Department

A representative from Dekalb Fire Department

Registration: Lunch is generously being provided by Munters. Space is limited! Please RSVP to Christine Wiseman no later than March 3, 2008 to hold your spot. (678-364-3761 or cwiseman@sos.georgia.gov).

This educational opportunity is sponsored by HERA, Atlanta's Heritage Emergency Response Alliance, a cooperative formed to mitigate the loss of cultural heritage materials in the event of a disaster. HERA formed as part of Alliance for Response, a series of nationwide forums held in 2004-2006 sponsored by Heritage Preservation.
